

Town author's new novella is a game of two laughs

BEAMINSTER-born author Adam Jones is allergic to sport. It makes him go all red and sweaty.

Still that hasn't stopped him deciding to donate all the proceeds from his new book to Sport Relief because he loves the work it does for communities around the country.

He has written a novella especially for the event. The book is called A Game Of One Half and is on sale now. It is available on Amazon, in Kindle edition or paperback and will remain on sale for the rest of the year.

Adam is a published academic and the author of the Little Whippenden series of novellas. The Kindle edition of A Game Of One Half is £1.99, of which £1.33 goes to Sport Relief, the paperback is £3.99 and £1.09 goes to the charity.

The book tells of the strangest football match ever, played with a cast of zombies, vampires, werewolves and the WI.

Another phone

IN THE interests of fairness my teammates say I have to own a 'losing' yet another mobile phone shortly after running over the one.

After ordering a £29.99 replacement on eBay it turns out I am just too deaf to hear it ring on the sofa in the next room.
